Mark Davison, Senior Quantity Surveyor at one of the leading specialist Healthcare Sector Consultants in the UK, Cardiff based Chessmann Consulting, who are celebrating a decade in business in 2008, has recently achieved his Assessment of Professional Competence, gaining Chartered Surveyor status.

It has been an eventful journey to full membership of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors. Having worked as a Material's Technician, Mark first became interested in the profession due to a chance discussion with a Quantity Surveyor. After spending time in Hong Kong, upon his return to the UK Mark successfully completed an HND in Building Studies. It was whilst he was working in an interim role at a double glazing company that a vacancy arose at Chessmann.

“This was an ideal opportunity for me to enter the profession, and train in a firm that had established a reputation for innovative, client focused solutions, and also consolidated their position as a specialist provider to the healthcare sector across the UK. The role has been and continues to be challenging and enjoyable. Chessmann acts on behalf of both private and corporate clients, ensuring that a variety of projects can be worked on – from residential care home developments to hospitals and mental rehabilitation centres.”

Lee Bishop, Chessmann's Managing Director said “It's great to have yet another Chartered Surveyor on the team. Mark is a highly valued team member, who provides excellent client service, and we are proud of his achievement. Our commitment to training and developing our team will continue, and it is extremely rewarding when we see this type of success being experienced by our team members.”
